Farmer leaders seek support of traders in city for tomorrow's dawn-to-dusk Nationwide bandh call

Some of the farmer leaders seeking support from shopkeepers at Shivarampet in city this morning.

Mysuru, Dec.7 (RK&DM)- Tomorrow's dawn-to-dusk Bharat Bandh called by farmers protesting in Delhi demanding that the Union Government repeal the three farm laws is likely to have mixed response in city as several Trade Unions, farmer organisations and Trade Associations have expressed support.

However, most associations of the service sector have expressed only moral support.

To drum up support, farmer leaders, armed with pamphlets and other information materials, visited the city central areas this morning requesting traders, shopkeepers, vegetable and fruit vendors and other wholesale merchants to close business for the day in support of the bandh.

Farmer leaders were seen forming groups and visiting areas like Devaraja Market, Chikka Gadiyara, Shivarampet, Sayyaji Rao Road, Ashoka Road, D. Devaraj Urs Road and surrounding areas where a cluster of businesses are located seeking support for the bandh. They were seen explaining to the vendors and traders on how certain policies of Governments are affecting the common man.

Meanwhile, most of the Opposition parties in the country have backed the bandh call.

In Karnataka, Aikya Horata, a coalition of farmer, labour and Dalit groups has supported so also the Karnataka Unit of All-India Kisan Sangharsh Co-ordination Committee, a coalition of several farmer organisations, All India Kisan Khet Mazdoor Sanghatan and Raitha Krishi Karmika Sanghatane.

India's Covishield vaccine awaits approval

- Serum Institute seeks Emergency Use Authorisation for COVID-19 vaccine
- Clinical trials were conducted at JSS Medical College in Mysuru in August

New Delhi, Dec. 7 (Agencies)- The Serum Institute of India (SII) yesterday became the country's first company to apply to the Drugs Controller General of India (DCGI) seeking Emergency Use Authorisation (EUA) for the Oxford COVID-19 vaccine in India.

On Saturday, the Indian arm of US pharmaceutical giant Pfizer became the first to seek a similar approval from India's drug regulator for its COVID-19 vaccine in the country, after securing similar clearances in the UK and Bahrain.

The phase-three clinical trial of the Oxford COVID-19 vaccine — Covishield — is being conducted by the Pune-based Serum Institute of India (SII), co-sponsored by the Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR), in various parts of the country in addition to clinical studies being carried out by Oxford-AstraZeneca in the UK and Brazil.

Incidentally, the Phase II clinical trials for Covishield were conducted at JSS Medical College and Hospital in Mysuru in August this year. In Karnataka, JSS Hospital is the only institute that has been selected for the clinical trial. Covishield was administered to about 25 volunteers at JSS Hospital after Phase II trials began on Aug. 29.

Reports from the Hospital then said that there were no adverse impact on any of the volunteers including fever, allergy and side effects and the results were quite encouraging. The results were later sent to AstraZeneca.

Based on Phase II and III clinical trial results, the SII with the help of ICMR will pursue early availability of the vaccine for India. According to the ICMR, the SII has already manufactured 40 million doses of the vaccine under the at-risk manufacturing and stockpiling licence it obtained from the DCGI.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

Here's the big question, obliquely posed by the Little Master (Sunil Gavaskar), about contemporary cricket's global superstar (Virat Kohli) in a recent column: is Virat being 'unpatriotic' by opting for paternity leave over playing for India in the ongoing test matches in Australia? Of course, Shri Gavaskar being a master diplomat and tactician stopped short of identifying India's cricket captain directly — but hey, anyone else you know from the team who is taking time off to be with his wife when she delivers their first child in January 2021? I read Sunny's column with enormous interest — he is a fine writer who provides invaluable insights into various aspects of this complex game. As a media veteran and a seasoned cricket commentator respected across the cricketing world, his fans tend to scrutinise not just the printed text on the page, but the subtext too. Sunny narrated his own experience as an 'expectant dad', way back in 1975-76. He writes feelingly about not being present at the birth of Rohan, his first and only child. He adds that he first saw his son three months later at the end of the extended West Indies/New Zealand tour. He adds it was a question of priorities.

Cut to 2020 and we are talking of another era. Literally, another century. Sunny Gavaskar is now in his seventies. A venerable senior citizen. Virat Kohli is a passionate, hot-blooded 32. Kohli is totally today. He too must have taken an equally tough decision (in consultation with his movie star-film producer wife, Anushka) about opting out of the current Australia tour to hang with the mother-to-be till their firstborn arrives. There's a recent photograph of India's skipper helping his wife while she performs a shirshasana (headstand), propped against a wall. She has thanked her "very able" husband (and her yoga teacher) in her Instagram post, in the process, inspiring other pregnant ladies and practitioners of yoga, to learn from her example, with appropriate guidance and support, of course. Several young couples I know have been doing a Virat-Anushka for years. It is a preferred way of life these days. Gone are those times when fathers and husbands could hide behind "we are too busy earning for our families to take time off". Mothers and wives of this generation are equally busy earning for their families. Having a baby is a joint venture — not a solitary pursuit. Hats off to Virat and Anushka! We have no doubt he loves all three with an equal sense of commitment and passion — India, cricket and Anushka — not necessarily in that order! — Shobhaa De in The Times of India

House that has the interior design of a Baroque Palace

Irkutsk: Photos of a modern house near the Russian city of Irkutsk have gone viral on social media because of the contrast between its exterior and interior design.

Located in the village of Novaya Razvodnaya, near Irkutsk, this modern house was recently put on sale, as part of a 620-square-meter property. At first glance, the house has a pretty modern look, but the solitary Roman column decorating the yard hints at the fact that there is more to this place than meets the eye. The moment you set foot inside, it's like going down the rabbit whole and waking up in a whole new dimension.

As modern as the exterior of this house looks, the inside looks like it belongs in Peterhof Palace. One can be surrounded by gilded rococo and baroque-inspired decorations, intricate chandeliers hang from the ceiling and the furniture fits the same white and gold theme as the rest of the place.

Energy Pyramids – Simple hills or ancient man-made complex?

Visoko: The Bosnian town of Visoko has become a popular tourist attraction in the last decade and a half, thanks to several "energy pyramids", tree covered hills that some claim are actually part of the largest pyramid complex ever built.

The 350-foot-high Pljesevica Hill, aka the Pyramid of the Moon and the 720-foot-high Visocica Hill, or the Pyramid of the Sun, which border Visoko, are two landmarks in central Bosnia and Herzegovina. Along with a third so-called "pyramid" in the nearby hills, they allegedly make up an ancient man-made complex that gives off massive "energy force" that have a positive influence on people's lives. Although scientists have been trying to debunk these claims for many years, believers include a number of high-profile names, including tennis world No.1 Novak Djokovic.

Start issuing Completion Reports

Sir,

Apropos to the news item MCC Style... Walk, Talk and Collect Tax in SOM dated Dec.2, we do agree that shop owners need to pay the tax on time.

We may also note that many thousands of houses in Mysuru — which are completed in construction and people residing since 2014 — are not given the CR (Completion Report), resulting in crores of rupees as tax not reaching the MCC.

If they can push this activity, MCC could get a huge amount of revenue for its development activities. Will the MCC Commissioner take this up on a war-footing? I am sure most of the citizens are willing to pay the house tax.

Congress apprehensive about BJP spending huge money in GP polls

Mysuru, Dec.7 (MTY&DM)- Accusing the ruling BJP of spending huge sums of money in the Assembly bypolls held recently, former Chamarajanagar Congress MP R. Dhruvanarayan expressed concern that the BJP is planning to do the same in the upcoming Gram Panchayat polls.

Speaking to presspersons at Jaladarshini Guest House here on Saturday after a party meeting on GP poll preparations, Dhruvanarayan said the Congress has taken the GP polls seriously. Alleging that the BJP was blatantly misusing powers to win the GP polls by hook or crook, the former MP said that Congress workers must keep a round the clock watch on BJP's money spending spree.

Pointing out that the party has come with plans to win more than what it had secured five years ago, he said that it was the Congress who introduced the Panchayat Raj system. Charging the BJP of making attempts to weaken the GP system, he said that the party workers should ensure that Congress gets the upper hand in this election, which is vital for strengthening the party at the grassroot level.

Varuna MLA Dr. Yathindra Siddharamaiah alleged that the BJP, which has failed on all fronts, was planning to spend huge sums of money in the GP polls just as it did in the recently held Sira and R.R. Nagar by-polls.

Hunsur MLA H.P. Manjunath who also addressed the press meet, wanted the Election Commission to cap the spending for GP polls too. Expressing concern that the ruling BJP may blatantly misuse State official machinery to win the GP polls, he appealed the Election Commission to issue an order putting limits on poll expenditure.

MLA Anil Chikkamadu, MLC R. Dharmasena, District Congress President Dr. B.J. Vijaykumar, former MLA Kalale Keshavamurthy, and others were present.

POLICY POLITICS & PEOPLE

To ban or not to ban?

By Dr. R. Balasubramaniam

The recent Deepavali festival saw the Government of Karnataka vacillate between wanting to ban firecrackers and not wanting to ban it. Chief Minister B.S. Yediyurappa initially announced that his Government was considering a ban but went back on this a few days later.

The expert committee for managing the COVID pandemic constituted by the Government used science and evidence to prevail and the Government finally issued ban orders against using the regular firecrackers but permitted the use of green crackers. As with many other similar situations, the orders were neither here nor there. Seeing through this shoddy approach, the High Court of Karnataka asked the Government to first clarify what was meant by 'green crackers' and asked it to issue implementable guidelines regarding the same.

It is easy for one to conclude that the policy-maker was confused and possibly inconsiderate and not worried about the consequences of the rising number of COVID cases. One could also infer that the forces affected by the ban on firecrackers were powerful enough to lobby with the powers that be and ensure their business remained reasonably unaffected. Or, was the Government worried about the political fallout that may have emerged from taking decisions that could potentially hurt the religious sentiments of people. While all this could be mere conjectures, we need to ask ourselves why policy-making in such situations is never going to be easy.

Let us begin by presuming the Government has the best interest of the people in mind and bureaucratic policy-makers understand the implications of implementing good or bad policies. One also needs to appreciate that the decision-makers cannot fully ignore the challenge of being rational while at the same time responding to people's sentiments, and ensuring the governance obligations of the State are preserved.

Why then do such decisions get taken? Is it appropriate to simply blame the Government for taking decisions which on the surface seems mindless. Or, should citizens understand that science should precede religious expressions and behave in a rational and socially conscious manner. Whether it is wearing masks, following traffic rules or conserving water, the Government can only ensure policies that keep the interest of communities and their welfare in mind. Unless citizens are aligned to see personal protection and well-being in public regulations that are framed, such policies are going to be always contentious and difficult to ensure compliance.

How then should policies be framed? How can one ensure that a policy produces net public value? Any policy needs to necessarily pass through three filters. The first filter is asking whether the policy framed is based on evidence and if it is technically sound and viable? In this case, there has been enough global evidence to show that the number of COVID cases in a region rises if the pollution level goes up. And it does not need an expert to tell us that firecrackers cause air and sound pollution.

The next step would be to ask whether implementing such a policy would be administratively feasible. Are the resources (financial, legal, technical, personnel, managerial) necessary to enforce the ban available or realistically obtainable in the short of period of time that was there? Taking the example of banning regular firecrackers and permitting green crackers two days before Diwali shows how this decision was administratively impossible to implement. It is no secret that one could easily procure regular firecrackers in the open market and several people went about bursting them with no regard for personal or public health or safety.

The third filter is to ask the question if the policy is politically sustainable. This means that the stakeholders whose support is required to comply with the ban endorse it and believe in its operational feasibility. Banning firecrackers without preparing the dominant religious community adequately ahead of time is not a politically sustainable solution in these days of religious polarization and political exploitation of religious sentiments. What the Government needed to do was to consider taking a clear decision far ahead of time preparing not just the public, but also the vendors and the implementing machinery to enforce the ban.

In democratic societies where people's aspirations are a major electoral concern, it is natural for the State to pamper people's demands. Whether it is giving doles or power subsidies, the Government assumes and articulates people's needs without a proper assessment of the same. The general contention is that politicians understand the pulse of the people and are perfectly capable of articulating them. This may not be completely true, and Governments need to setup and cultivate authentic and reliable channels for citizens to communicate their voices. The recent attempt by the Ministry of Finance of the Government of India seeking inputs from the general public for the Annual Budget of 2021-22 is a good example of this.

Citizens also have to appreciate the occasional contradictory demands of enjoying one's 'Personal Rights' Vs fulfilling one's 'Social and Civic Responsibilities'. While it is easy to demand the right to burst crackers as a symbol of religious expression, we also have to bear in mind the responsibility towards personal and public health. One cannot lose sight of the fact that the expenses incurred on treating thousands of COVID patients in public facilities is being done so from taxation revenues that the common man is contributing. Finally, it is in the public's economic interest that one does one's bit for reducing the number of COVID cases and advocates for implementable and sound policies from the Government of the day to facilitate this.

Rotary Midtown's Project Random Act of Kindness...

Spreading warmth to shelterless on winter nights

Mysuru, Dec. 7 (SSV)- A hot meal or a warm blanket amid nip in the air cost nothing to most of us, but can be life-savers for thousands living on streets, with no roof above their head. This winter, homeless, daily wage workers and those who have lost their homes to calamities are the worst hit. And if the cold weather wasn't enough, they have COVID-19 to battle with.

A warm blanket in the harsh winter months can save a child's life, it can protect a woman's dignity and spread warmth to lakhs of homeless people. Many people, volunteers and NGOs donate blankets to shelterless people who suffer out in the open amidst cold condition. The donors set out during night incognito to distribute blankets to not so fortunate people.

At present in Mysuru, this noble task is being carried out by Rtn. A.N. Aiyanna, President of Rotary Midtown and his group of friends from the Club that has a 40-year history of charity and social service. "We have not set any targets. Over 50 woollen blankets are carried in a car daily around the city and we scout for people sleeping without blankets. There are days when we have hardly found a single person on streets, without a blanket. We feel happy that people have stopped sleeping on streets as they might have got the shelter," Aiyanna told SOM.

He and his Club friends start from their home after 10 pm with around four to five dozens of blankets in a car and visit areas including Sub-Urban Bus Stand, City Bus Stand, M.G. Road, RMC Yard, Bandipalya, Siddarthanagar, Nanjumalige, Dodda Gadiyara Circle, Ashoka Road and Railway Station in search of such people. Without waking up them, these donors put a blanket on them and silently disappear from the scene. "We do not want to wake up the sleeping person, give self-introduction and handover the blankets," he said.

The team has also donated blankets for people sleeping under the sky in K.R. Hospital premises. "We are ready to donate blankets to even 500 persons under our Club's 'Project Random Act of Kindness' and 'Team Jataayu' is always ready to execute this project," he noted.

Club Secretary Rtn. Veeresh, Community Service Director Rtn. Jayakumar and Treasurer Rtn. Satyendra are behind in these community service. Recently, the Club donated washable uniforms (sort of PPE kits that help fight Coronavirus) to Police personnel so that they could wash it and wear it without leaving them in the open for drying.

During lockdown, the Club members donated food items to needy. "I got elected as Club President in June this year and wanted to sponsor two dialysis patients daily. But dialysis is not happening in many hospitals due to pandemic. Once things are normal, I am launching the initiative again," Aiyanna said.

India's Covishield ready

Official sources, citing the SII application said, the firm has stated that data from four clinical studies, two in the UK and one each in Brazil and India, shows that Covishield is highly effective against symptomatic and most importantly against severe COVID-19 infections.

The results are in line with other Coronavirus vaccines and because of the huge disease burden, Covishield is predicted to alleviate substantial COVID-19 mortality and morbidity, the firm is learnt to have said.

"In terms of safety, Covishield is safe and well-tolerated and can be used effectively for prevention of COVID-19 in the targeted population. Thus, the benefit to risk ratio strongly supports the widespread use of Covishield," a source said quoting the application.

According to sources, this vaccine is logistically feasible for distribution in the country's urban and rural regions as it can be stored at two to eight degrees Celsius, which is an ideal temperature for being kept in cold storages in the country.

Bharat bandh tomorrow

In Mysuru, Trade Unions have expressed solidarity with bandh organisers while Mysuru Hotel Owners' Association and Mysore Travels Association have expressed only moral support.

While some Bank Employes Unions have supported the bandh and as such, banking services are likely to be affected to a certain extent. Mysuru Hotel Owners' Association President C. Narayana Gowda said that hotels will be open as usual tomorrow.

Hotel industry comes under essential service and the industry has just begun to look up following the outbreak of COVID-19 pandemic and the Association at this juncture, cannot support the bandh. However, the Association is supportive of the cause of farmers, he added.

KSRTC will operate buses as usual, both on the city and rural routes. Institutions of higher education, markets, commercial and business establishments and essential service shops and centres will remain open. Goods and passenger transport are unlikely to be hit as auto and taxi associations have not yet declared their support.

Ten-day Winter Session begins

Bengaluru, Dec. 7- The ten-day Winter Session of the Karnataka Legislative Assembly began at Vidhana Soudha in the State capital this morning in the backdrop of COVID-19 crisis.

On the first day today, the session was found lacking in numbers, with only Chief Minister B.S. Yediyurappa and few other members of his Cabinet, about 25 Legislators of the ruling BJP and as many members from the Opposition Congress and JD(S) combined attending it.

The winter session, which was usually held in Suvarna Vikasa Soudha at Belagavi for the past few years, was re-scheduled to take place at Vidhana Soudha this year in the wake of COVID-19.

The session is likely to be a stormy affair as the ruling BJP is expected to pass its 14 important Bills, including the Cow Slaughter Amendment Bill, the Industrial Disputes and Certain Other Laws (Karnataka Amendment) Bill, 2020, the Karnataka Land Reforms (second amendment) Bill, 2020, the Karnataka Agricultural Produce Marketing Bill, 2020 as well as BBMP Bill, that facilitates holding of elections to 243 Wards instead of the existing 198 Wards.

The Government is also likely to face flak from the Opposition over its failure to come to the rescue of farmers and people affected by floods, alleged scam in the purchase of COVID equipment, formation of Maratha Development Corporation and a host of other issues.

Understanding Gemstones

The path of the planets movement is elliptical. Out of the nine planets, five of them are said to have a direct effect on terrestrial events and they are Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn. The stone for Rahu is Gomed or Hessonite; a planet considered as the ascending node of the Moon. Rahu generates unnecessary worries and strained relationships and causes unpredictable and sudden changes. Similarly the stone for Kethu is Cat's Eye; a planet considered as the descending node of Moon that influences thinking, asceticism, relationship and wisdom. Cat's Eye is precious gem, which harmonises Kethu.

In the Advanced school of Vastu, the planets not only have a bearing on the occupants but also influence the design element in terms of layout and décor. They also radiate the type of energy which aids specific activity of a sector in a building. The planet Sun is the King of all planets, having a purifying male energy and a stable and selfless nature. This planet rules the east and resides at the Northeast quadrant of the home and hence, in Vastu the Northeast sector is set aside for spiritual knowledge, meditation and worship as Sun also represents the inner or true self. The gemstone for planet Sun is Ruby. The stone enhances overall success in the life, improves the leadership qualities and puts a person at the forefront. Since centuries, it was worn by battlefield commanders to protect themselves from the enemy. It improves intellectual capabilities and concentration. Therefore, it is used to drive away various stress related problems like insomnia, hysteria, etc.

The Moon is considered as life-giving or mother energy and relates to the subconscious and instinctive activities. The Moon signifies rejuvenation, renewal, refreshment and signifies the bathroom in a home layout. Pearl is the stone for planet Moon. It gives calm and vibrant feeling, improves memory as well as the confidence for the interaction with people when worn.

Jupiter the largest planet known as "Guru" represents wisdom, learning, knowledge and is also said to be the planet to dispel darkness. Guru also means Teacher and is even referred to as "Teacher of the assembly of Gods". This planet represents the library and study sector of the home. Placing valuables like jewelry, in the North sector of the house which represents Guru is considered auspicious. Yellow Sapphire is the stone for Jupiter, it gives material wealth, prosperity, status and overall growth.

Mercury, the smallest planet, is the closest to the Sun and is the planet for communication and is a messenger but is said to be restless too. Vedic astrology refers this as Budha which is derived from the Sanskrit word "Buddhi" or intellect. This planet is said to be very active when a living or dining room is in this sector and activates the social life. Emerald is the stone for Mercury, the planet representing wisdom and voice, It improves decision making capability, reasoning power and presence of mind.

Venus is the brightest and radiant planet and is known as Shukra in Vedic astrology and governs the romance side of the human nature, passion, beauty and arts. This planet governs the bedroom and the dress area and is often complemented with colours like pink, peach, chrome yellow and at times light blue. The Stone for Venus is Diamond and is said to be the king of precious gemstones. It represents the Venus planet or Shukra, which is regarded as the third brightest planet. Venus is also the ruling planet of Taurus and Libra. Diamond gemstone increases the positive influences of Venus such as stamina and wealth. It also provides blissful marital life and good health.

The planet Mars also know as Red planet is called Kuja in Vedic astrology and it can be seen with the naked eye in the night. This planet relates to war, fire, and instability and is destructive. Hence, this planet governs the Kitchen sector. Red Coral is the stone for Mars. This deep red coloured gemstone bestows upon a person self-confidence and administrative abilities. The planet, which is slowest moving, darkest and relates to element metal is Saturn known as Shani. It is the darkest planet and corresponds to all dark places like cupboards, basements, lofts etc. Blue Sapphire or Neelam is the stone for Saturn. This bright blue colour stone is an extremely powerful stone that provides protection from the evil influences of Saturn. This gemstone provides protection from misfortunes, accidents and unforeseen dangers.

Vastu and the celestial influence enables us to understand and design a layout of a house according to the function of each room, rotation of the Earth and the position of the Sun throughout the day. The ancient Sage (Monks) believed that the mind and body have different activities depending upon the time of the day and designed and orientated the various components of the house to harmonize the movement of the Sun and the daily human cycle. Harmonising the energy of the Planets which govern the individual and the energy of the place of dwelling with proper Vastu ensures a home with total harmony and peace.

MCC plans to shift e-toilets to Govt. Offices

No users despite setting up at crowded places in city

Mysuru, Dec. 7 (MK&SSV)- Mysuru City Corporation (MCC) is mulling shifting of e-toilets to Government Offices in the wake of theft of accessories inside toilets.

Under 14th Finance Scheme, the MCC had installed e-toilets at various locations at a cost of Rs. 7 lakh each. In all, the Corporation had spent Rs.1.61 crore on this project with a view to help people to answer nature call by using Rs. 5 coin. These were prominently established near places where the footfall was more including Central Business District (CBD). Mysuru, being an important destination, attracts lakhs of tourists every year. With no public toilets for the visiting public, the MCC had decided to set up e-toilets so that they can relieve themselves by inserting Rs. 5 coin.

Unfortunately, there are no takers for these e-toilets may be due to cost factor or hygiene. At many places, miscreants have taken away the pipe, taps and other accessories inside these toilets due to absence of watch and ward. Many of them were not in a usable state.

No response

The MCC had invited tender twice for maintenance of e-toilets but none came forward. No one has responded to Rs. 24 lakh tender floated by the Corporation. Because of this reason, e-toilets built for the citizen's benefit, were not being used. Costly instruments, coin boxes and damaging parts are happening unabated.

"We established e-toilets in crowded places for the benefit of general public. But, accessories inside toilet are being stolen frequently. To ensure the safety of those toilets, plans are afoot to shift them to the Government Offices. A final decision will be taken soon."

— MCC Commissioner Gurudatta Hegde

Maintenance is not required if it is used regularly, opined M.C. Srinivas, Executive Engineer, UGD Section, MCC.

Meanwhile, Corporator Pramila Bharath said officials are not maintaining e-toilets despite bringing to their notice several times. Despite repair of two e-toilets on D. Devaraj Urs Road twice, it is not being used. "I don't know for whose prestige it has been established on this road. What's the use if it is not helpful for citizens", she added.

WORD OF THE DAY

Tyro

Pronunciation: TYE-roh.
Meaning: A beginner in learning: novice.

Origin: The word tyro is hardly a newcomer to Western language. It comes from the Latin tiro, which means "young soldier," "new recruit," or more generally, "novice." The word was sometimes spelled tyro as early as Medieval Latin, and can be spelled tyro or tiro in English (though tyro is the more common American spelling). Use of tyro in English has never been restricted to the original "young soldier" meaning of the Latin term. Writers in the 17th and 18th centuries wrote of tyros in various fields and occupations, and Herman Melville used tyro to refer to men new to whaling and life at sea. The word also has a long history of being used attributively — that is, directly before another noun — in phrases like "tyro reporter" and "tyro actors."
Example: The ranch has one riding trail for tyros and several more challenging options for experienced riders.

THE ODD WORD

Tachism

Painting by smearing or splattering.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

A load of cobblers

Meaning: Nonsense, rubbish.

Origin: This is a classic of Cockney rhyming slang. It has nothing directly to do with shoemakers but originates from 'cobblers' awls', the pointed hand-tools that cobblers use to pierce holes in leather. The rhyme is with 'balls', meaning testicles.
The phrase is often reduced to simply 'cobblers', which is now considered an acceptable vulgarism, as many may not be aware of its origin. 'Cobblers' sounds as though it might have been said by cheeky Victorian barrow boys in Dickens or similar. In fact, it isn't as old as it might sound and wasn't used until the mid 20th century. The earliest example that we find in print, bearing in mind that it probably existed as street slang for some time before printed versions appeared, is from Philip Allingham's Cheapjack, his account of life amongst English market traders and fairground stall-holders, which was published in 1934:
"The Cobbler is even more simple. It is a ball game.. 'cobbler' is the slang for ball." The first example of the full phrase 'a load of cobblers' that I can find is from the British popular music magazine Melody Maker, October 1968:
"Geno Washington says Grapefruit's recent attack on the Maryland Club, Glasgow, was 'a load of cobblers'. They are one of the best audiences in Britain, says Geno."

Radhakrishnan Nair appointed as Chief Coach of Indian Athletics

New Delhi, Dec. 7 (Agencies)- Athletics Federation of India (AFI) on Friday appointed the vastly experienced Radhakrishnan Nair as its full-time Chief Coach, filling the post left vacant after the resignation of Bahadur Singh in July. The 62-year-old Nair was the Acting Chief Coach of Indian Athletics since then.

AFI President Adille Sumariwalla expressed confidence that Nair would be able to guide Indian athletes to greater heights. "We are happy we will be able to maintain continuity of our planning since Radhakrishnan has been the Deputy Chief Coach for seven years now," he said in an AFI release.

Nair, who is also a certified Technical Official and World Athletics Level-5 Coach, has been instrumental in enhancing the coaches' education system in India. He is the first Indian to have an International Coaching Enrichment Programme Certificate of the International Olympic Committee.

"We are particularly pleased that his ideas of implementation of modern coaching methods and the use of sports science in the development of young athletes have worked well," said Sumariwalla.

"At the AFI, we believe he will also continue to work towards improving the standard of coaching across the country, especially at the grassroots level, with his stress against early specialisation and over-training."

Nair's appointment as Chief Coach has been endorsed by the Sports Authority of India (SAI), the AFI said.

Goa beat Kerala for first win

Margao: FC Goa picked up their first victory in Hero Indian Super League (Hero ISL) 2020-21 after a 3-1 win over Kerala Blasters FC at the Fatorda Stadium on Sunday. Goals from Igor Angulo in the first and second half as well as a strike from Jorge Mendoza gave the Gaurs maximum points.

Kerala did try their best to find a way back into the contest and nearly set up a tense finish by scoring one in final minute of normal time. Vicente scored the goal after a well-executed header off a Nishu Kumar cross from the right to halve the deficit.

Things went from bad to worse for Kerala in stoppage time when a lapse at the back by Albino resulted in Angulo robbing the Indian custodian of the ball and slotting into an empty net to secure maximum points for his side.
